

Preparations regarding GRE

We believe that as you are here you have already made up your mind. You are one of the few people who are ready to take on the challenges of graduate studies in engineering. Congratulations and perform well.

Before you come to a conclusion, there is a general advice. Start your preparations early (this point cannot be ignored). Giving the tests (GRE, TOEFL etc) preparing for them takes time. Also deciding the right schools, preparing your essays and applications is a very lengthy process and if you have time on your side then that is ultimately a biggest advantage.

Sometimes people missed very crucial opportunities, Either they have started very late or because something went wrong and they didn't have enough time.

Various links in the GRE section points towards official ETS test preparation material. That is the most crucial and conclusive material. It is advisable to use everything provided by ETS, As it is outstanding and free.
